ASPIRES TO SENATE

Representative Percy T. Clark of Stonington, (With Fine Record, Seeks Promotion.

Percy T. Clark is an active candidate for State senator from the western section of Hancock county on the Republican ticket.

Since being admitted to the Maine bar in 1912, Mr. Clark has been located in the practice of law in the town where he now lives, and his success has stamped him as a man of sound judgment and of good business ability. He has the interest of Hancock county at heart and the experience which he has had as a teacher in the public schools of the State, before his admission to the bar, as superintendent of schools especially qualifies him for rendering valuable service in behalf of the educational institutions of our State. He has already had service in the legislature as representative from the Stonington class and took keen interest in the matter of good roads and the improvement of the rural schools.

Mr. Clark is married and has two children. He has always been a firm believer in the principals of the Republican party. He believes in a clean government for the State of Maine and for the strict and impartial enforcement of the laws upon the statute books against immorality and vice, and especially against the illicit sale of intoxicating liquors.

He is a member of the Baptist church, an Odd Fellow and Knight of Pythias and high up in the Masonic order. Many friends in Hancock county, having observed his record in the legislature, and his sterling qualities, believe that he will be a senator who will represent the county of Hancock, if nominated and elected, in a manner which will reflect credit not only upon himself but on the entire county.

LOOKING UP SNOW

State Charities Board Gets More Light On Polish Murderer and Suicide.

Following investigations recently made by the State Board of Charities and Corrections certain facts have just been brought to light concerning the previous record of John Snow of Jefferson, the Pole, who committed suicide after the recent tragedy in which he took five lives. It will be remembered that after the shooting, Snow's baby was taken in charge by the Charities Board at the request of the settlement of Jefferson. The infant girl died, however, after being taken to Augusta.

Secretary Cornish of the board learned from very reliable authority that Snow's first wife, Josephine (Ranowsky), died Jan. 26, 1920. There were three children by this marriage. The two youngest, Frank, born June 8, 1919, in Chelsea, Mass., and John, born Dec. 25, 1919, in Brighton, Mass., were received by the Department of Public Welfare of Massachusetts on March 8, 1921. Snow made a few payments toward their support, but he was lost track of in the spring of 1921. The oldest child, Mary, who was born Oct. 20, 1917, had remained with her father and by him was placed with a family in Chelsea. Application had been made recently to have the child taken by the Massachusetts Welfare Board as the father had not been heard from. In the letter received by Mr. Cornish it was stated that had it not been that the mother's death upset plans, the children would undoubtedly have been committed through the court, as neglected, since both father and mother were interperate and the children were not receiving the proper care.

SEEKS PORTLAND COLLECTORSHIP

Fred W. Wight of Rockland, Assistant To Director Lord, Is One of Several Candidates.

Announcement in Saturday's Press Herald that Fred W. Wight is a candidate for collector of customs for the port of Portland was no surprise to his friends here who have known for months that he was quietly securing endorsements for that position. The Press Herald's story said:

"Two names are being mentioned in connection with the appointment of a successor to Charles M. Sleeper as Collector of Customs at the Port of Portland, whose term expires next June. They are Fred W. Wight of Rockland and Charles B. Clarke, ex-mayor of Portland. Senators Hale and Fernald will recommend some one for the place in the spring, and their recommendation will be accepted by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and President Coolidge.

"Mr. Wight is at present assistant to the Director of the Budget, Gen. Herbert M. Lord. Mr. Wight has held this responsible position for the last two years, during which the Budget Bureau has made a record for economy and businesslike management of government expenditures that has won it the praise of the President. Congress and the country at large.

"Mr. Wight recently filed an application for the collectorship with the Senators and accompanied it with numerous endorsements from prominent men in all parts of the State. Mr. Clarke has not filed a formal application nor formal endorsements, but he has been urged for the collectorship by friends for some time, and is understood here to desire the appointment.

"Mr. Wight served 14 years as collector of the Waldoboro district, and it will be remembered that he won distinction by refusing to resign his post when William G. McAdoo, then Secretary of the Treasury, under the Democratic administration of President Wilson, demanded the resignation of the Maine collectors of customs. Wight was promptly 'fired' by Mr. McAdoo after he had failed to leave his post voluntarily before his four-year term expired. That was on the occasion of the putting into effect of the consolidation system in 1913." The Portland Evening Express added the following interesting information:

"An interesting development in the contest for the collectorship of the port of Portland is the information that the members of the American Legion of Maine may have a candidate for that position. It is stated that no important federal appointment in Maine has been given to a service man and that many of the veterans believe that they should be recognized by the collectorship. It is not understood that they have united upon a man, although some are favorable to Col. Frank M. Hume of Houlton. Col. Hume has repeatedly stated that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for senator and would not accept a federal appointment, but some of his friends believe that he would take the collectorship if it should be offered him.

"Although no authoritative statement has been given out there has been a tacit understanding that the appointment is likely to go to an eastern Maine man. The only candidate in Penobscot county, so far as learned is A. L. Blanchard, an attorney of Bangor. Mr. Blanchard has large support in that section.

"When Fred W. Wight of Rockland who is now assistant to the director of the budget, was in the city last fall he informed some of his friends that he was going to be a candidate for the collectorship and he has already filed some strong letters and petitions in his support with the Maine senators. Mr. Wight has long been prominent in Republican politics in Maine and was at one time collector of the port of the district of Waldoboro. No federal appointment has come to his section of the State and Mr. Wight's supporters are of the opinion that this part of Maine is entitled to recognition.

"There are several candidates of the collectorship in the first district, prominent among them being former Mayor Charles B. Clarke of this city and County Clerk Frank D. Fenderson of York county."

STRAND THEATRE

This Is the Week of the Big Harold Lloyd Attraction, "Why Worry?"

After you have seen this week's attractions at the Strand you are quite welcome to tell the world whether you ever saw a more satisfying week of pictures.

The grand ensemble starts today with a double-header. One of the features is "None So Blind." Throughout the story there runs a dual love motif: a young aristocrat has become enamored of a beautiful girl who is not of his faith, while a charming debutante who walks in the rarefied atmosphere of the highest social stratas, has met and given her heart in the keeping of a boy of Russian parentage. The theme is further complicated by the fact that the parents of each of the young people involved in this four-sided tangle have made totally different plans. How it all works out in the end makes a picture play which is as engrossing as it is unusual.

William Duncan, wearing a monocle, is the hero of the other feature, "The Fighting Guide." He posed as an English nobleman and got away with it.

All of the suspense and heart throb which made James Oliver Curwood's magazine story, "The Man From Ten Strike," so absorbing and widely read has been transferred to the screen with consummate skill by the producers, and it is now offered under the title of "Gold Madness" which will be shown Wednesday and Thursday. And in addition to all this there is the added beauty which can only be attained in pictures and which makes this cinema offering one which will long be remembered by theatre goers of this city.

Harold Lloyd took the nucleus of the ancient anecdote of Androcles and the lion and made "Why Worry," his Pathe comedy which plays Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Lloyd can always be depended on to give something new in the laugh line and in "Why Worry" he has produced a plain farce that transforms a South American revolution into a world war of fun. A young aristocrat whose flesh is afflicted with all the ills known to science aided by one huge giant, and a petite leading lady dole out pop in bulk and make war a pleasure. The great joys of the picture are Harold Lloyd's whimsical frailties, Jobyna Ralston's pretty face, and Colosso's huge strength. Nothing funnier than the combination of the three persons who broke up the revolution in Paradise has been seen in the films. Picture a wealthy young American sent South for his health who lands in the middle of a Revolution and mistakes the shooting of the guns as a salute of honor to him. Then imagine that same sickly youth thrown in a cell with a nine-foot giant, a wild looking meek hermit from the hills.—adv.

"CARL" GLIDDEN DEAD

Manager of Falmouth Hotel Formerly Had Charge of the Narragansett Hotel.

Carlton Glidden, manager of the Falmouth Hotel and one of the best known and best liked hotel men in the State of Maine, died Sunday at St. Barnabas Hospital, Portland, from an illness following a serious operation of a few weeks ago. Mr. Glidden would have been 50 years old the 27th of this month. He was a native of North Whitefield, but had lived most of his life in Portland, and had devoted practically his entire business career to hotel pursuits.

He rose from belboy to a clerkship and a managership. He was at one time manager of the Narragansett Hotel in Rockland, and later went to the Congress Square as clerk under the late George W. Stearns. Upon Mr. Stearns' retirement from the management of the Congress Square, Mr. Glidden became its manager. In 1920, during the Maine Centennial, when the remodelled Falmouth was opened Mr. Glidden was made manager of that house, and had continued in charge up to the present time.

Until four years ago he had made his home in the Dering district, but recently he and Mrs. Glidden occupied apartments at the Falmouth.

Mr. Glidden is survived by his wife, by his father, Oakman Glidden, and by a son, Edwin Glidden, 19 years old.

FAVORS THE BRIDGE

Hon. A. R. Day Says That Fair Play Demands It Be Built.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

I notice that your paper suggests editorially that the people of this section when asked to sign nomination papers for candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor be asked "if he is a friend of this region East of the Kennebec." I think that this is a very fair and proper question. The reference of The Courier-Gazette is to the position of the candidate relative to the construction of a bridge across the Kennebec at Bath.

I wish to say unreservedly through the columns of your paper, as I have already said to many residents of Knox and Lincoln counties, that I am firmly in favor of the construction of the bridge. I believe that all sections of the State should receive equitable treatment. We have voted as a State for the construction of the State Pier at Portland, which is for the benefit of the whole State, and particularly of advantage to Cumberland County.

I believe this is the proper action and I desire to say that fair play and consideration for the development and convenience of the counties of Knox, Lincoln, Sagadahoc, Waldo and Penobscot demand the construction of a bridge at Bath. It will be a development whose advantages will not be confined to counties mentioned but will be to all travelers. And in addition I wish to say that I believe my position is that of the people of Penobscot County generally. We in Penobscot County spend for fair play.

SEATTLE GROWS

Prosperous Northwest Metropolis, Home of Many Former Knox Countyites.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Enclosed please find our check for $3 with which to pay one year's subscription to December 1924 for your excellent paper, for Mrs. Bothwell, as per enclosed mailing slip. Although she has been absent from South Thomaston two-score years, still she finds many of the items in your paper of interest, and these are shared by her sister, Mrs. W. R. Ballard, and occasionally Mrs. Fred Rice Rowell, Mrs. Mary Dean Courter, Mrs. Hattie Dean Martin, also Mrs. Bothwell's brother, George F. Thordyke, all of whom live in or near Seattle.

Seattle continues to grow finely and has increased its population, since Mrs. Bothwell and I arrived in 1833, from 6000 to 350,000, and has developed in wealth and importance. The very extensive lumber business, together with the enormous income from various farm products (wheat, apples, hay, dairy products, poultry, etc.), together with very extensive fishing business along the Alaska coast, which comes largely through this city, makes a very large total income. As Seattle is a few hundred miles nearer Japan than any other American city, and has five continental railroads leading to the east, the city enjoys a very important commerce, and shipments by rail, and through the Panama Canal by modern steel ships, conveys enormous amount of products of the Northwest to the eastern states and Europe. Our city is recovering rapidly from the reverses of the dreadful war; 1923 will show a very large business, and next year promises still better.

It is indeed pleasing to know the general confidence there is being expressed in our good President, Mr. Coolidge, who is regarded as a competent careful New England man, in whom the people may well place their confidence.

BUSY PHONE PLANS

New England Expects To Spend $29,000,000 In Five States and Install Thousands of Phones.

With the monthly bills sent out by the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., were pamphlets containing interesting items relative to the service which the corporation is giving under the head of "Plans for the New Year" appears the following:

"Just a word about our plans for 1924. This business is growing faster than ever. Demands for new service show constant increase. Our response is to start the new year with the largest program ever attempted.

"In the five States in which we operate there will be spent $29,000,000 for additional equipment within 12 months. This will include new central offices, new cable and wire, new and large switchboards. It means greater effort by all of us.

"The more telephones, the more valuable service is to you. During 1924 we expect to put in 215,000 new telephones and to remove 140,000, a net gain of 75,000."

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

THE BURIAL OF THE POET

In the old churchyard of his native town, And in the ancestral tomb beside the wall, We laid him in the sleep that comes to all, And left him to his rest and his renown. The snow was falling, as if Heaven dropped down White flowers of Paradise to strew his pall— The dead around him seemed to wake, and call His name, as words of so white a crown; And now the moon is shining on the scene, And the broad sheet of snow is written o'er With shadows cruciform of leafless trees. As once the winding-sheet of Saladin With Chapters of the Koran; but, ah! more, Mysterious and triumphant signs are these. —Henry W. Longfellow.

GOD'S DAILY BENEFITS:—Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation.—Psalm 68:19.

THE NEW YEAR'S PROMISE

Urging a spirit of optimism, of achievement and of thanksgiving for the abounding blessings with which this country has been crowned, the Manufacturers' Record directs attention to the universal progress which is being made throughout the nation. In the factory, on the farm and with the railroads it is the same story—of an active demand for labor with steady employment and at a higher rate of wages than at any other time except a brief period during the late war. The railroad earnings are on the increase, and the constantly expanding traffic means that enormous sums must be put into circulation to enlarge the facilities and maintain the present plants on a proper basis. The long period of inactivity in building construction work has plunged the whole country into a perfect maze of new construction, the like of which has never been noted in the United States. The tremendous value of farm products—three billions greater than in 1922, the value of which exceeded by two billions the value of the products of 1921—shows what agricultural interests are doing despite the handicaps which the farmers endured in 1920 and 1921. Even a seeming misfortune is turned to advantage, for while the boll weevil was doing its best to destroy the cotton crop the product will yield close to a billion dollars more than would have resulted from over-production. Southern farmers will also benefit to the extent of half a billion from the sale of citrus fruits this season, it is said. And with it all there is an unprecedented amount of highway construction. The wish for a happy new year in 1924 carries with it something more substantial than a mere perfunctory pleasantry.

With the administration's effort to obtain a greater efficiency in the enforcement of the Volstead law is coupled an honest endeavor to save waste in the cost of operating that machinery. And between President Coolidge and Director Lord we cannot help feeling that it is going to be done. There is, for instance, the item concerning coast patrol. Reading between the lines it is not difficult to see that Gen. Lord has been exercising his prerogative by calling a halt on the proposition to expend $20,000,000 on the appropriation for building and manning coast guard ships. The President now asks Director Lord to confer with the Shipping Board and Navy Department officials to see if vessels under the control of those two agencies cannot be used instead of building new ships. It is not to be wondered at that the taxpayers rest more content knowing that there are two such safeguards in Washington as Coolidge and Lord.

The report that Congressman White was again considering the matter of entering the gubernatorial contest speedily brought forth a number of suggestions as to who would best fill his chair in Washington. Among the names most prominently mentioned are those of F. W. Carleton of Woolwich, Rupert H. Baxter of Bath, Walter S. Gray of South Paris, Frederick O. Eaton of Rumford and Dr. G. A. Gregory of Boothbay Harbor. But this is presidential year, and Congressman White's supporters will probably reach the conclusion that his is the name which properly belongs on the ticket.

Fred W. Wight should prove a formidable candidate for the collectorship of customs at Portland. His experience as collector for the Port of Wadsworth have admirably qualified him for the duties, and his ability to fill a high office has had a further demonstration through the marked efficiency he has shown the past year as assistant to the Director of the Budget in Washington. Mr. Wight has long been identified with political affairs in Maine, and the influential backing which he has acquired can scarcely fail to have its bearing on the appointment.

The Navy Department is not asleep at the wheel, if one is to judge from the statement of Secretary Denby, who says that "we will have no difficulty in maintaining a navy in accordance with our international agreements on this subject." He hints that a great deal is being done to preserve our integrity on the seas, of which the public knows but little.

Despatches from Egypt say that the sarcophagus and last resting place of the Pharaoh of the Book of Exodus have been discovered after 3000 years. "Last resting place" sounds something like a misnomer to those who have been reading about the explorations in King Tut's tomb the past year.

KNOX ACADEMY, A. & S. President Lermond and Colleagues Invited To Attend Celebration of Radium Discovery.

From an editorial in the Boston Herald of recent date, is quoted the following: "Less than a week ago the French Chamber of Deputies voted a pension of 40,000 francs, annually to Mme. Curie and her daughters; today at the Sorbonne scientists from all over the world, will join President Miller and members of the Chamber, in celebrating the 25th anniversary of the discovery of radium."

The above text has a home touch for all who are following the work of Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences, and is another tie which binds local interests, with these of the plucky, undaunted French nation, for it will be remembered Mme. Curie is an honorary member of this academy. And in her day of triumph a letter came to N. W. Lermond to join his colleagues in celebrating an event, which is proving such a boon to mankind. Follows the French text and translation of the letter:

Institut Du Radium de L'Université de Paris, 25 Rue d'Ulm.

1er Décembre 1923.

Monsieur le Président: J'ai l'honneur de vous faire savoir que La Fondation Curie, célébrera le 25ème anniversaire de la découverte du Radium par les Curie.

Une Soirée Solennelle Aura lieu à cette occasion à la Sorbonne sous la présidence effective de Monsieur le Président de la République Française. La Fondation Curie vous prie de vouloir bien faire part à vos honorables collègues de cette commémoration à la quelle Elle Serait heureuse de vous voir participer. Veuillez agréer Monsieur le Président l'hommage de nos très hautes considérations.

Le Secrétaire Général

C. V. Regaud.

The Translation

Mr. President:— I have the honor, to make known to you, that the Institution Curie will celebrate, on December the 25th the 25th anniversary of the discovery of radium. An impressive function will be held on this occasion at the Sorbonne, Paris, in the presence of the President of the French Republic. The Curie Institute begs you to take part, with your honored colleagues, in commemorating this great event, and will be happy to see you. Please accept the homage of my great respect.

The Secretary General.

C. V. Regaud.

Perhaps the nature side of the Academy has been overemphasized; the woods; the glimpses of winding river, through white birch tree trunks; Indian trails; botanical gardens and song of birds and have lost sight of the real aim of Mr. Lermond in creating an institution for Eastern Maine, where tests can be made, and experiments carried on in this same field of science. For this he is trained and is giving his life work to further, and even now is engaged in research work to find the remedy for the white pine blight in our own locality.

The people of Knox County, through the days of the war, were quick to sacrifice to meet the appeal for great causes and have given generously to build the foundation for the proposed Academy building; "but we must still carry the work along," says one of the supporters "for it is really our readiness and in the honor we too share."

LATEST FORD JOKE

Have you heard the latest Ford joke, as being told in Washington? Well, here it is: "Henry Ford never went to college; but he did go to Coolidge."

The phonofilm, a combination in which you not only see the characters of a moving picture, but hear them speak is said to have been successfully demonstrated by an Ohio man. But why doesn't some enterprising manager install a radio set with loud speaking attachment so that the patrons can enjoy both of their favorite diversions at the same time? Seems to be what the world is coming to.

DEMOCRATIC BUNK versus OFFICIAL RECORDS

Washington, Jan. 5.—(Special Correspondence). In 1920 the Democratic tariff law was functioning in all its glory and all the rest was gloom. Our imports for that fiscal year attained the highest total in our trade history, namely, $3,238,000,000. That meant a per capita of foreign goods entering this country of $17.22. According to the Statistical Abstract of the United States 65 per cent of these goods came in without the payment of a cent of customs duty. The average rate of duty on all imports sank to the low record of 6.38 per cent, and on dutiable goods to 16.4 per cent.

In 1920 we imported over $1,500,000,000 worth of food stuffs, $357,000,000 worth of textile manufactures, $24,000,000 of leather manufactures, $40,000,000 in hats and materials, and $157,000,000 in manufactures of wood, lumber, shingles, etc. These were all new records up to that time.

Now, by all the canons of Democratic faith and political exegesis, a three and a half billion increase over pre-war imports should have made the cost of living in 1920 decline. Eight years before the Democratic Party had campaigned the country on the issue of free trade versus protection. The latter was blamed for the high cost of living. The former was held up to the American people as their only means of breaking the strangle hold which the wicked trusts had on the country.

"Give us control of the government and we will give you low prices on the things you eat and drink and wear and use for housing," was the Democratic promise to the voters. A rift in the Republican ranks gave them a chance to make that promise good and they immediately undertook to reinstate their near-free-trade totem while flaunting President Wilson's solemn declaration that not an industry in the country would be harmed, a statement which was followed by another soon after to the effect that the industrial depression was merely a state of mind. Within seven months of the passage of the 1913 tariff law over 4,000,000 men were out of work, and only the outbreak of the European War saved us from bread riots.

Sept. 22, 1922, the policy of protection was restored and the Fordney-McCumber tariff went into effect accompanied by the most dismal forebodings on the part of the Democratic Party and the importers' combine which had been "pocketing profits" ranging from 150 to 2500 per cent on imported commodities. By the first of October, 1923, a full year after the Republican law, $3,835,000,000 worth of commodities had been imported of which $2,182,000,000 came in free. The law was admittedly framed to protect the farmer and the manufacturer and it has done so, yet at the same time giving a fair share of the American market to our foreign competitors. Itemized figures covering the full year have not yet been compiled, but the totals above mentioned speak for themselves.

The day after Christmas the United States Bureau of Labor issued an announcement showing that "the cost of living was one-fifth less in September, 1923, than in June, 1920, when the highest point in living costs since 1913 was reached. A decrease of 20.5 per cent in the total cost of living in the United States as determined by a consolidation of the figures for 32 specified cities." And this under the protective policy!

Three days before this announcement was published the Democratic National Committee set a flat one billion dollars as the cost of the tariff to the Christmas shoppers, and throughout the year they had been asserting that the tariff added $4,000,000,000 annually to the cost of living. What have they to say now in view of the official records?

WHITE NOT A CANDIDATE

Frank Farrington Sees a Good Omen—"I Am Not Raising Religious Issue," Says Brewster.

Congressman Wallace H. White has reached a final decision in regard to the governorship. He will not seek the Republican nomination.

The first nomination paper has been filed at the office of the secretary of State, that of Roy L. Fernald of Wintport, Democrat, who seeks to represent the Islesboro-Wintport class in the next legislature. Mr. Fernald, it will be remembered, contested Joseph A. Pendleton's seat in the House, but after the recount Mr. Pendleton was seated.

Frank G. Farrington, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, says that everything is looking fine from all quarters of the State. Questioned whether he had any statement to make concerning his platform or policy, he asserted that he had nothing to say at the present time, but expected to give out a statement a little later. Mr. Farrington said he was particularly pleased to find on one paper the signature of John Wilson of Presque Isle, driver of the wonder horse, John R. Braden. "I take that as a good omen," he said. "If Braden and his driver are with me I ought to be headed for victory."

"It has been charged that I have been responsible to some extent for raising a religious issue in this state. I do not believe this criticism is fair," Ralph O. Brewster, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor declared in Fairbairn Sunday night before the open forum of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"I have frankly and firmly advocated a constitutional amendment prohibiting the appropriation of public funds to sectarian or parochial schools. It seems to me that this must fairly be called a public school issue rather than a religious issue. The constitutional amendment which I have advocated makes absolutely no discrimination between the various sects. As a matter of fact, about four-fifths of the money now being appropriated by the state to sectarian schools is going to Protestant institutions while only about one-fifth is going to Roman Catholic seminaries. No public school funds are going to parochial schools so far as my knowledge goes except in Northern Arctostock where the public school system and the parochial school system are united.

"The effect of the amendment which I have proposed at the present time would accordingly be much more unfavorable to Protestant than to Roman Catholic institutions. I believe very strongly that the integrity of our public school system should be maintained at all cost. To me it is only possible to do this through protecting our public school funds from diversion to sectarian schools.

"I stand squarely in favor of preserving the integrity of our public school system by prohibiting the appropriation of public funds to sectarian schools. I cannot conceive that this can be considered raising a religious issue since this seems to me fundamentally an issue of the American public school.

"I believe that a serious defect in our public school system is the failure to make any adequate provision for religious education or training and for this reason I have advocated the excuse of children for a stated period each week to receive religious instruction in the church home of their parents as requested by their parents.

"I believe and I have some evidence to support this conclusion that if any adequate provision could be made in connection with our public school system for the children to receive proper religious training in the church home of their parents that very many Roman Catholic parents would prefer to send their children to the public schools because of the advantages which they would derive from associating with all the different elements of our population and because of the efficiency from a secular standpoint of the public school system which we have developed in America."

Declaring himself in favor of tax reduction and opposed to the soldier bonus, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, in an address before the National Republican Club of New York, said this issue could not be avoided or sidestepped.

"One is either for tax reduction or he is against it," he said. "One has a right to be for the bonus or he has a right to be for tax reduction. But he cannot be for both. You cannot take off a temporary burden of $140,000,000 or $150,000,000 and lay on a permanent burden of $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 and call it tax reduction. It would be a dangerous political experiment. It would defeat any party that would undertake it."

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL.

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $2,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more must file returns.

WHEN? The filing period is from January 1 to March 15, 1924.

WHERE? Collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which the person lives or has his principal place of business.

HOW? Instructions on Form 1040A and Form 1040; also the law and regulations.

WHAT? Four per cent normal tax on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the person's exemption and credits for dependents. Eight per cent normal tax on balance of net income. Surtax from 1 per cent to 50 per cent on net incomes over $5,000 for the year 1923.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

No. 3

If you are single and support in your home one or more relatives over whom you exercise family control, you are the head of a family and entitled, in your income-tax return for the year 1923, to the same exemptions granted a married person. These are $2,500 if the net income was $5,000 or less and $5,000 if the net income was more than $5,000. In addition the head of a family may claim a $400 credit for each dependent upon him for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

For example, a son supports in his home an aged mother and two sisters 14 and 16 years of age. His net income for 1923 was $3,000. He is entitled to an exemption of $2,500 plus a $400 credit for each dependent, a total of $3,700. While he pays no tax, he must file a return, because his net income was in excess of $1,000. An exemption as the head of a family can be claimed by only one member of a household.

Work Without Proper Aim.

I respect the man who knows distinctly what he wishes. The greater part of all the mischief in the world arises from the fact that men do not sufficiently understand their own aims. They have undertaken to build a tower, and spend no more labor on the foundation than would be necessary to build a hut.—Goethe.

REFORMATORY BURNED

Inmates Of South Windham Institution Help Save the Contents.

The main building of the State Reformatory for men at Mallison Falls, South Windham, was burned last Saturday night between 6 o'clock and 7. A score of inmates committed for various offenses from different parts of the State assisted in saving some of the furniture, and none stampeded. All were taken to Portland later by the sheriff's department and quarters provided for them in the county jail.

The fire started around the chimney in the cell built last year and in the absence of adequate fire-fighting apparatus, spread until it enveloped the main house as well. The South Windham and Westbrook fire apparatus responded, running two miles and five miles, respectively, through badly drifted roads and a driving snow storm.

COLOR LINKED WITH POLITICS

Paint Has Played Important Part in History Since the Beginning of World's Division.

Color has played an important part in the politics of many countries over a long period. When Dutch William came to London, orange was naturally the color which greeted him everywhere in his progress to Whitehall, and orange remained his symbol, so much so that the squeezing of an orange was a method of intimating detestation of the "tyrant." White has served more than one political party. The "White Plume of Navarre" was a rallying point in France at one period, the white cockade was the symbol of the royalists at another. The "tricolor" was still more important and more durable than the violet of Napoleon.

Nor was any great difficulty made in changing colors on necessity. An English traveler in France at the beginning of the Hundred Days noticed that the sentries had adapted their cockades to the needs of the moment by painting over the tricolor with a coat of white, through which, however, the original colors could be seen quite plainly.

Damascus Looms Long Famous.

The looms of Damascus have been famous for many centuries. In this city, where everything is still done in the most primitive way—where meal is ground in stone mill; turned by camels, the hand looms are worked by a weaver and his draw-boy. On these looms are made the beautiful damasks, woven in silks of brilliant colors, that were known throughout Europe and Asia as early as the time of the Crusades.

Determining Ship's Tonnage.

The first rule in this country for determining the tonnage of ships was adopted by congress in 1793, but it was not correct and some shipbuilders and masters swindled greatly by clever use of the error, so in 1835 the British people determined to apply the theorem of Newton by determining the contents of solids bounded by irregular surfaces, and in 1854 the present law, fixed in England, was adopted by other countries and is in general use now on all seas.

Facts the First Requisite.

Facts are to the mind what food is to the body. On digestion of facts depends the strength of the one, just as on assimilation of food depends the vigor of the other. That man is wisest in council who has digested the largest number of facts.

WANT TO BE POSTMASTER

Four Candidates Seek Appointment in Union-North Haven P. M. Has No Opponent.

Candidates for the position of postmaster at North Haven and Union were examined by the local Civil Service Commission at the Postoffice Saturday.

Winfield L. Ames, the North Haven postmaster, is a candidate to succeed himself, and had no competitor at Saturday's examination.

Edwards A. Mathews who desires to again serve as postmaster in Union, found considerable rivalry for the position. Others to take the examination were Carl W. Mitchell, Addie P. Mitchell and Charles A. Simmons. Mr. Simmons is a former postmaster.

Several Forms of Sugar.

Many varieties of sugars exist, cane sugar, maple and beet. Failing these we have corn sugar under the name of glucose or dextrose, and the same in vegetables, fruits and honey. In a brownish powder we find it on prunes or raisins. Lactose or milk sugar is another principal sugar, although it will never fill an important place in commerce. It exists in cow's milk, and plays an important part in nutrition.

Battery G holds its regular drill at the Armory tonight.

John Jay Perry, the income tax expert is making a week's stay with his Rockland constituents.

Fred B. Spear of Eastport has been appointed a member of the Sea and Shore Fisheries Commission.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist church meets Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 in the ladies' parlor.

Rockland encampment will work the Golden Rule and Royal Purple degrees Wednesday night. Supper after work.

The steam lighter Sophia is dredging at McLean's wharf for a few days giving a greater depth of water for the lobster cars.

King Solomon Temple Chapter, R. A. M., will have work on the Mark Master degree at a special meeting Thursday night.

The Bay View Society is giving a baked bean supper and dance at the Town hall, Head of the Bay tomorrow evening. Music by Blithen's Orchestra.

Mrs. Joseph Brazier found a caterpillar in the shed yesterday and with much consideration for the belated summer visitor put him under the kitchen stove to get warm.

All members of Ivanhoe Temple, Pythian Sisters are requested to attend the regular meeting tomorrow night as business of great importance is to come before the Temple.

The islands were well represented at the local hotels Sunday for the very sufficient reason that the boat made no trip Saturday or Sunday, on account of the storm and rough weather.

The W. C. T. U. meeting will be held Friday afternoon at 2.30, at the Methodist church. Rev. B. P. Browne will be the speaker, his subject being, "Moral Standards a Test of Christian Civilization."

There were no Boston Sunday papers on sale in this city Sunday, connection having been prevented by the storm. And the readers who tell you that there is nothing in them were the most indignant ones in the lot.

Clayton Witham and Edward O'B. Gonia qualified in the Carnegie hero medal class yesterday when they tackled John W. Lane's runaway pair of ponies on Main street. Capt. Gonia got a line aboard of them first and cut down their speed several knots before he was captured. Meantime Witham, fresh from a sea trip to Swan's Island and consequently unfeared, caught the bride and was dragged a block before the stop was effected.

The paying of the telephone bill this week was a bit easier because of the cheery pink New Year's greeting enclosed with the bill. The little sheet brought the wishes of the 24,000 telephone employees to the 1,000,000 users and told a little story about the company's will to serve. It told a word about the 5,000,000 daily calls and the 60,000,000 annual toll calls which go to make up this $50,000,000 business and promised the earnest effort of all concerned for still better service.

On account of bad weather conditions Edwin Libby Post did not hold his installation with the Corps Thursday evening, as planned. The officers will install next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and the Post invites all members of the allied orders to be its guests on that occasion. There will be a program and the ladies will serve a supper in the banquet hall at 5 o'clock. The regular circle supper of the Corps will be held at the usual hour, 6 o'clock. It is hoped that the weather will be kind and the Post of this installation of Edwin Libby Post, G. A. R., may be one of the best ever.

A CARD

A Word To Our Customers:

We wish to thank you all for our largest business that we have had on our Nine Cent Days, and also for the assistance that was given us by the extra help that came in for the two days. Our only regret was that our out of town people could not come as the traveling by boat and automobile was not good.

Respectfully,

The Volstead Act is in for a warm going over Jan. 14 when the Freshman and Sophomore classes of Rockland High School will debate the question of its enforcement, as is, in the auditorium.

The Legion basketball quintet will try conclusions with the High School five in the Legion hall tonight. This is not a regular game but a tryout of strength for both teams. The school-boys have a suspicion that they will teach the old boys a few tricks.

The Fordson snow-plow came down from Camden yesterday morning smoothing the road up as level as a table with snow four inches deep. Some criticism was encountered in one town where the machine took off so much snow that the sleighing was harmed. This was remedied by raising the plows an inch or two.

Commander Reed M. Fawell, who has been serving as recorder of the Naval Trial Board the past two years, has been assigned to the scout cruiser Trenton. Lieut. Zenke, who has also been a member of the Trial Board, goes with Commander Fawell to the Trenton. Both Naval officers have many friends at this port, and have figured in numerous social events here.

Mrs. Eva D. Snow, Rockland's oldest teacher in point of service was given a pleasant surprise Friday when her fellow teachers in the McLain school presented her at recess time with a handsome birthday cake and many remembrances. Mrs. Snow was most happy over the event, which made one of the brightest days in her 42 years of public service. She plans to retire from the teaching service in the spring.

Winter and summer is all the same when it comes to progress at the bustling Northend. The newest business establishment there is "Barber Shute's" fine new two-chair shop. This is located in N. E. Cobb's new block, being the middle store. It is 14x22 and has an ample storage space in addition. The finish is all white enamel as are the two chairs. Practically all of the furniture and equipment is new and includes all the latest wrinkles and conveniences in the barbering business. The large mirrors will reflect another face about March first when the genial George will add another knight of the razor—Next!

The Chapman Concert—Jan. 16 at the First Baptist Church—is to be a midwinter musical occasion of much moment, presenting a soprano and a violinist of unusual superiority. For lack of space the endless newspaper criticisms of those artists cannot be reproduced, but Miss Nadyworn is fresh in the minds of the music loving public of Maine, where she was acclaimed by every newspaper as possessing one of the most beautiful voices that has appeared here. She has more opportunity than ever to display her vocal gifts, by singing the great arias from four grand operas, which is one of her prominent parts of the Rockland program. Her singing of Russian songs made her famous in New York and Europe, and she will give a wonderful group of these, together with a group of English songs. Mr. Rabinowitch, the wizard of the violin, whose playing is full of romantic fire and passion, fancy and humor, will take his audience by storm.

Mrs. Elmer E. Barde sends us from Port au Prince, Hayti, a copy of The Brigadier, a newspaper published in the Haytian capital. The article "How It Is Done," describing the handicaps under which the paper is printed, is naive and amusing. Mrs. Barde (Beatrice) is secretary of the Red Cross Chapter in Port au Prince.

When Sunday's storm cleared away and very little traffic was to be observed residents of the side streets from Main to Broadway were surprised by a strange apparatus, which proved to be the red and white rescue car of the Fireproof Garage, towing a home-made snow plow. The latter contrivance had no gear shift and was manipulated by A. C. Jones, hence it must have been an Apperson product. In fact there was a placard on it which intimated that it was of Apperson parentage. All of the side streets were cleared during the day, from North Main to Pleasant street, and yesterday a strenuous hour was put in on Thomaston street where heavier drifts were encountered than those which the apparatus penetrated Sunday. It was volunteer work, much appreciated by citizens and Commissioner Ross. Charles H. Berry, 2d, and Lloyd N. Lawrence alternated in command of the rescue wagon. Among the first duties was to clear the streets leading to the hospitals. The Ford company's tractor was put in a busy day, yesterday on Broadway. The work of these volunteer crews serves to show what can be accomplished by modern methods.

Guests to the number of 350 witnessed last night one of the most beautiful and impressive installations ever held by Claremont Commandery, K. T. Eminent Sir Edward K. Gould, Grand Senior Warden of the Grand Commandery of Maine, equalled his well known "best" as installing officer, and was assisted by Eminent Sir Edward C. Payson as Grand Marshal and Sir Walter S. Rounds as Grand Prelate. Marston's Orchestra gave several selections and the Universalist quartet with Mrs. Grace Phelps Armstrong sang two delightful numbers. A highly pleasing innovation was made in the flag service when Mrs. George St. Clair, Miss Pearl Borgeson, Miss Corice Thomas, Mrs. Eugene Frost, Mrs. Austin Day and Mrs. Clarence Curtis, members of the Eastern Star, clad in the white of their order, brought in the flag. The story of the flag, as told by the installing officer, was the charge of one of the patriotic organizations of which he is a member, and was very impressive. This was followed by the singing of "Star Spangled Banner." Albert Increase Mather was installed as recorder for the 52d time. The refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Millie Thomas, assisted by Mrs. Raymond Watts, Mrs. H. H. Flint, Mrs. C. S. Rollins, and Miss Corice Thomas. The ball room was tastefully done in the seasonal red and green, under the direction of Mrs. Hester Chase. R. V. Stevenson, Edward Gonia, Mrs. Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Watts assisted. The floor was in charge of H. E. Robinson, L. E. Howard and B. J. Philbrook. Marston's Orchestra provided excellent music. A complete list of the Commandery's new officers appeared in Saturday's issue. Claremont is headed this year by R. V. Stevenson, an energetic and enthusiastic Sir Knight, who is certain to give a successful administration.

SUPREME COURT CONVENES

Twenty-Two New Divorce Entries Have Been Made—Judge Dunn Is Presiding.

The January term of Knox County Supreme Court convened this morning, presiding Justice Charles J. Dunn of Onondaga. This is Judge Dunn's third visit to Knox County, the first being the September term of 1919 and the second the April term of 1922. He is very popular with the members of the Bar and court officials.

The following new divorce entries have been made:
Clara A. Carroll of Camden from J. Fred Carroll of Rockland, married at Rockland March 1, 1888. Grounds for complaint, non-support, desertion and cruel and abusive treatment. Divinal for libellant.

Gertrude L. Dunbar of Camden from Alton M. Dunbar of Camden, married at Camden April 15, 1918. Grounds for complaint, cruel and abusive treatment. Libellant asks for custody of minor child, Edward J., aged 5 years. Divinal for libellant.

Clara E. Roscoe of Rockland from Percy E. Roscoe of Thomaston, married at Rockland April 9, 1919. Grounds for complaint, cruel and abusive treatment. Libellant asks for custody of minor children, Ruth E., aged three years, and Flora M., aged one year. Johnson for libellant.

CITY GOVERNMENT

An Electric Light Order Was the Most Exciting Thing At Last Night's Session.

The midwinter session of the City Government last night was purely a routine session.

Alderman Erskine's order for a 600 c. p. light at the corner of Waldo avenue and Camden street was referred to the street lighting committee.

Robert Krewer was granted a license as moving picture operator. Upon recommendation of Marshal Gilchrist, Archie York was appointed special policeman for Empire Theatre. Simop Briggs licensed as junk dealer.

Clarence H. Moore's gift of $200 for the care of the Moore-Drumhouse lot in Achnor cemetery was accepted.

City Clerk Keene's receipts for December amounted to $41.65. The Highway department expended $1716, including $267 for graveling Limerock street—Marshal Gilchrist reported 13 arrests, only three of which were for intoxication—City Treasurer Virgin's total receipts were $65,528 and the expenditures were $65,363. The cash balance at the end of the month was $15,130—Collector Lovejoy's total receipts were $16,260—The roll of accounts represented a total of $6812.

A joint installation will be held in Odd Fellows hall tonight. The officers of Knox Lodge will be installed by District Deputy Luke S. Davis. District Deputy Grand President will officiate for the Rebeekahs.

The gigantic elm which has been standing a great many years on the front line of the premises now owned by Raymond Duff, Masonic street, has lost many of its limbs the past few days, in the process of being taken down by the expert Billy Burke. It is understood that a number of other big trees on Masonic street will share its fate—in the interest of safety, economy and looks.

The electric light standards on Main street were denuded of their holiday greens yesterday. The humorists all had their fling while the work was in progress.

CARD OF THANKS.
I wish to express my appreciation of the many acts of kindness extended to me during my recent bereavement. Especially thoughtful was the closing of the schools and places of business.
Marion Weidman.

FLORIDA'S PASADENA

Wonderful Progress in Proposition Begun By Jack Taylor—To Expend Million This Season.

In the winter section of a metropolitan newspaper recently appeared an interesting article concerning Pasadena-on-the-Gulf, an important Florida real estate development brought about through the skill and energy of Jack Taylor, a New York capitalist and promoter well known in this city. The article follows:

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Seven miles of brilliantly-lighted boulevard, beaded with white-way lights on either side at every 100 feet of its due east and west right of way, is the gift to St. Petersburg from Pasadena-on-the-Gulf, the $50,000,000 suburban development here which is beginning its third year this winter.

Central avenue, the name of the long, beaded highway, is already one of the great streets of the South, rising from Tampa bay, at its east end, and running straight as a string to Boca Ciega bay and the gulf of Mexico at its western terminus. For 10 long city blocks the white way lights twinkle now on the avenue, lighting up the combination of broadwalk shops and metropolitan stores and offices which form the business heart of St. Petersburg.

Pasadena Estates, Incorporated, is planning for another big city development at the west end of this avenue, grouped about the new $50,000 Spanish style seashore station now being erected, and built under the supervising control of a board of artists whose duty it is to fit all permanent construction into the Spanish-Moorish idea, the sub-division.

Already 50 large homes, ranging upward from $25,000, have been built and sold to northerners who are making the suburb on the gulf their permanent winter or year-round residences. The building program for the coming season contemplates spending a million dollars more for similar improvements of the property, to which is being added, as is the case with all modern sub-division work in Florida, all of the modern conveniences of a metropolitan city, water, gas, lights, paved streets, parked ways and sidewalks.

Despite the fact Pasadena, as the suburb is generally known, lies seven miles from the heart of St. Petersburg, it is within the city limits and on Central avenue. It is to emphasize this that the developing corporation has gotten into the movement to make Central avenue from bay to gulf and from the Sunshine City to Pasadena, the longest straight white way in the South, if not in the world. Property owners all along the line and beyond have gone out of their way to oversubscribe the financing fund.

When the highway is completed under the present lighting plan, which is expected to be next spring, Pinellas peninsula will appear to the aviator at night belted by the seven-mile girdle of light, with the spreading brilliance of St. Petersburg on one end and the lights of Pasadena on the other.

Other development plans for the sub-division, by which its builders hope to make it the most beautiful residence area in the state, call for the planting of hundreds of thousands of Australian pines and other shrubs and plants which are being started in the company nursery.

School sites have been set aside and parks reserved, and in the vast acreage to the south of the subdivision, controlled by the estates, plans are being made for a 36-hole golf course fronting in Boca Ciega bay and Bear creek, which will be surrounded by large villa sites, and which will in turn surround a central hotel site, the financing of which is to be undertaken during the coming summer.

Following the Pasadena lines of development, the entire western end of the city's environs has been taken hold of by developers, and at the present time there are half a dozen near-by subdivisions which are extensions of the idea and physical design of Pasadena on the Gulf, each adding hundreds of thousands to St. Petersburg really values this year.

"THE UNDERWOOD MAN"

Nice Little Junketing Trip Ahead For Johnny Boy, Prize Winner,

Making the best showing of any salesman in Maine, New Hampshire and northern Vermont, John C. Boyd of 204 Maple street, manager of the Bangor sub-branch of the Underwood Typewriter Company, won first place in a salesmanship contest, and is to be one of about 100 salesmen who will be the guest of the company in New York for a week the last of this month.

The contest has been in full swing for the past six months ending Dec. 31, and Mr. Boyd received notification Wednesday night of his high honor. Mr. Boyd, who is in charge of the northern and eastern part of Maine, sold about 180 typewriters in the six months. The total business done by the Underwood representatives in Northern New England was the largest in 20 years.

The contest was conducted by monthly quotas. Mr. Boyd sold 122 per cent. of his quota of machines, and the nearest to this record was 122 per cent. by the manager in Manchester, N. H. Mr. Boyd has been with the company since October in 1905, and is regarded as one of the best company salesmen in New England. Previous to 1905, he was in the machine business in Bangor.

The trip will begin about Jan. 2, and included in the week's program will be a convention and banquets. The sights of New York will be enjoyed by the delegates.—Bangor Commercial.

PLEASANT POINT

Mrs. Josephine Shuman and Richard Shuman have gone to Monhegan, where Dick is to engage in lobster fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Carle of West Roxbury, Mass., are spending their vacation at Faraway Farm. Mrs. Carle had the misfortune to fall and break the small bones in her wrist while out walking last week.

Capt. J. O. Chadwick and Leon W. Chadwick are visiting among relatives and friends in New York and Boston. Miss Enid Maloney of Port Clyde spent the weekend with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Maloney. She also visited Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hart at South Cushing.

Ira Seavey died Sunday morning. An obituary will appear later. Ernest Maloney, wife and daughter Enid of Port Clyde, spent Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Maloney. Mr. Maloney has never in his life missed being with his parents on Christmas Day.

The Christmas tree and concert which was held in the school house Christmas evening, was a success in every way. The little folks did their part in a very pleasing manner. The tree was heavily laden with remembrances for young and old and at the close of the concert, Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus appeared on the scene and distributed the gifts.

Thomas Stone and Leslie Young are attending court in Rockland this week being on the jury.

At the meeting of the Pleasant

Point Improvement Society last Friday evening the play, "Timothy Delano's Courtship" was given in addition to the usual program of reading, instrumental music, songs and recitations. At the close of the entertainment refreshments were served consisting of hot dogs, rolls and coffee.

The Cow That Starved in Clover

A certain cow, though pastured in bountiful meadows, was attracted by the more tempting appearance of distant fields. Shunning the abundance at hand, she wandered afar, always finding the new spots less appetizing and less plentiful, and always leaving them untasted for the new fields inviting her on.

Growing hunger only spurred her on until finally, exhausted by it, she fell to the sands of a desert whence she never again arose.

People who shun the stores at home because of the allurements of those in larger towns often find themselves getting less than they expected. Get in the habit of seeing your local dealer first. If he hasn't what you want, he will gladly get it. You'll be helping him to serve you better by helping him to make it pay.

MRS. SKUNK

"To be sure, Little Skunks," said Mrs. Skunk to her seven small children, "different Skunks have different ways."

"But we do walk on the soles of our feet, which is important. Some creatures walk along on their toes—such silly, silly ways as they have."

"Some of the Mr. Skunks will fight and even do very, very great harm to each other, and they have been known to eat each other. Yes, one farmer said he had known that to happen. And the farmer was a very truthful person."

"The Woodchuck family will never eat meat."

"I have heard, too, that some Skunks have been known to kill members of the Woodchuck family when they had gone into their holes, but only when the Woodchucks were sleeping in the autumn or in the spring.

"Many Woodchucks do well in the way they keep us out of their holes, though. Of course it is only natural that they shouldn't want to be disturbed."

"We will go after other small animals for our food and eat them."

"But in the fall we feast on grasshoppers. Oh, such feasts as we have."

"And we will have grasshopper feasts this fall and the time is here."

"In the summer it is impossible to catch any of the Woodchuck family and use their holes. You see, Little Skunks, we like their holes and so I talk of their homes and what luck we would have if we tried to get them."

"You see, in the summer time they're wide awake and they're smart and quick, and no one can get the better of them. They eat grass and pumpkins and apples and vegetables of all sorts. Mrs. Sally Skunk, my neighbor, only has four little children, while I have seven, and my neighbor, Mrs. Sadie Skunk, has only five. Five makes one more than four, but five is still two less than seven."

"Ah, well, we all get on together. Yes, the Mrs. and Miss Skunks are all most friendly. That is why we three share a hole together and all of us, with all of our children, stay together and keep house together."

"Little baby skunks make dear little pets when they are taken young enough. Ah, yes, it has often been said the Little Skunks are tamer and nicer and more fun than little kittens, and when they're made pets of when they're young they do not get a chance to become at all ferocious."

"At that all the Little Skunks squealed and said: 'Mamma, what does ferocious mean?'"

"Ferocious means wild," said Mrs. Skunk. "A ferocious Skunk would be a wild and angry and rather dangerous Skunk to fight against."

"Now it's a bit ferocious of the Daddy Skunks to kill or eat their little ones, as they would if given a chance, and as the Rabbits' fathers would, if given a chance. At least the Rabbit fathers would kill their young."

"But the Mother Skunks and the Mother Rabbits know enough to keep their little ones away when they are young."

"And then the daddies do not see them until they are bigger, when they like them better. Ah, well, we're pretty little creatures, and we can be very gentle and very nice, and we can be rather horrid."

"We're something like a rhyme I've heard about a little girl being nice when she was nice, and when she wasn't nice she was horrid. So the old verse goes. But let us not think of our ways now."

THE OLD K. & L. DAYS

Interesting Railroad Reminiscences, Dealing With Well Known Oldtimers.

(Charles S. Given in the Portland Sunday Telegram.)

Al Hodgkins began his railroad career on the Knox & Lincoln R. R. as a freight brakeman June 14, 1874, after trying the sea for a year, and later working in Boston in the iron business. After a few years of freight braking he was transferred to the passenger department, and I think was brakeman under Conductor White.

At the first opening he was placed in charge of the gravel train, and also acted as conductor. I think this was about 1882. He ran the gravel train summers and was baggage master on Hooper's train winters for several years. Hooper's train ran from the Bath end, and left about 8.45 a. m., and left Rockland on the return run shortly after 1 p. m., round trip per day, as in fact were all the K. & L. runs, even to the freight crew. Benjamin Whitehouse was the engineer on the gravel train, and they usually had Engine No. 4, "Edward Sewall," and she was a wood burner even as late as the 80's.

For about three years Al lived on the Bath end and ran gravel summers and Hooper's car winters, and he was in charge of the work train the year around for some little time. I think he succeeded Rufe Rideout on the freight which he ran for some little time, and in the early 90's was placed in passenger service.

In 1892 he was running the Rockland Pullman, Joe York was his engineer, Denny Murphy, and Frank Hooper were the baggage masters, running through between Rockland and Portland. O. A. Keizer, brakeman and W. F. Whitehouse fireman. Al was on this run some little time, then took charge of the morning passenger out of Rockland, and had that train much of the time until when in 1911, he contracted a severe cold which caused his death.

Al was one of the best all around fellows I ever knew. Very energetic, he was an experienced railroader, and on account of his jolly sociable ways, was very popular. Having run on the Knox & Lincoln division so many years, he knew the greater part of the people living along the line, and had a very extensive acquaintance with the traveling public.

During his 20 years of service on passenger runs, Al gained a warm place in the affections of the home folks and the travelers who came and went on his trains. He was one of the rare men who render to their employers, and to the public whom they serve more than the bare requirements of duty. Although he treated the members of his train crew as one of his family, was always very pleasant and sociable with them, yet his personal ways, such discipline was never relaxed on his train. His fellow workmen were his friends, always.

I knew Al from the days he first began to run work train, and although I never was a member of his train crew, I saw him every day for years, and he was always the same jolly and sociable old boy.

If one could relate all his railroad experiences they would cover a wide range and be very interesting.

He was the conductor with Ben Whitehouse the evening he made that remarkable run with a light locomotive and one passenger from Rockland to Woodville faster than any locomotive had covered it before or since.

His passenger train was stalled once overnight in a drift near Waldoboro, and he experienced many hard days of snow bucking in his work train days.

In the old days that K. & L. was a hard road to run on many sharp grades, many deep cuts, lots of curves, with a generous lot of bridges, which you would have to slow down for, and for many years all their trains were controlled by hand brakes.

All trainmen came up through the freight service, and when there was a vacancy on a passenger run for a brakeman, he knew every foot of the road and exactly where to set up brakes to make a quick station stop. There was no dragging a train slowly into a station. They did almost as quick a job as if the train was braked with airbrakes.

At the time the new station was built in Rockland and the line extended from the old station which was way on the outskirts of the city, Al had charge of the construction of this extension and was always very much pleased with the work he did on it. Very, very few railroaders were as popular as he. His friends were legion and he was sincerely mourned by the railroad boys and his many friends.

Have you a room that looks like this?

If you have, a few dollars spent in installing Convenience Outlets will forever sweep away those electrical cobwebs.

Electric cords have no business dangling from lighting fixtures. They don't look well, are a nuisance to attach and are usually in the way. This inconvenience is not necessary if you have Convenience Outlets in your home. Then you will have Convenience Outlets at handy points in every room—places to attach vacuum cleaner, fan, electric cooking utensils and floor lamps.

Complete wiring costs little but it brings your home right up-to-date.

Joseph Brooks has returned to Whitinsville, Mass.

Prof. Frederick Chapman of Damariscotta has been the guest of Mrs. Eugenia M. Walz.

H. A. Foelker has moved his family into the southern tenement of the Buley house on Main street.

Lawrence Weston of Portland was in town last week.

Mrs. William G. Labe was in Rockland Monday.

Mrs. C. B. Stahl went to Boston Friday.

Frank Nadeau has returned from a two weeks' trip to Fort Fairfield.

Mrs. Maude Orban of Boston is in town, called here by the illness and death of her brother, J. E. Brackett.

Much regret is expressed over the resignation of Miss Edith E. Benner as first assistant in the post-office.

Miss Benner, who has been connected with the office for several years, was most efficient in her position and will be greatly missed.

The Whist Club held the first meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. J. V. Benner. The prizes went to Mrs. Maynard Kuhn and Mrs. C. B. Stahl.

At the business meeting immediately following the committees were named for the three banquets of the season—Mrs. Boggs, Mrs. Flint, Mrs. J. Benner, and Mrs. Labe for January; Mrs. Stahl, Mrs. Sanborn, Mrs. A. Benner, and Miss Blancy for February; Mrs. Gay, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. H. Kuhn and Mrs. M. Kuhn for March.

The masked ball given by the Senior Class, W. H. S., in the Star Theatre Friday evening was an unqualified success. The costumes were beautiful and varied and many comical disguises also came in for their share of attention. A large number of spectators were present to enjoy the occasion. Bartow's Orchestra of Damariscotta with Gabriel Winchenbaugh and George Law, local musicians, furnished excellent music.

Dorothy Dalton was at her best in "Pop-Round" at the Star Theatre Saturday night. It was interesting to admire of the one-time star, Maude.

PEOPLE OF OUR TOWN

He Was a Man of Moods

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A man of moods was Michael Bond. When he was anything, glad, or sad, or mad, he was glad, sad or mad all over. Hence all the joy of the morning was in his singing, as his horse paced soberly along the woods road to the little log church. Never had there been quite such a Sunday—the deep woods were still dewy and all the spread of them scented with the rare sweetness of wild grape blossom. Birds sang, not too loudly, rather in soft, broken snatches; lush young leafage made shadow marvels on the road earth and the sun rays were true gold. Michael felt them shining in his heart the same as on his bare head—for was he not one and twenty, free at last from a curmudgeonly guardian, free to speak out as became a man and claim his sweetheart?

A wonder-woman, Helen of Troy they had raved over at school had nothing on her, he was sure. Josefa Kenyon was older than himself, but what did five years matter? Reticent also—nobody knew more of her than the happenings of two years since she came to teach in the village academy. To be sure, she had brought references of the highest and had reinforced them by a walk and way wholly impeccable. The most explicit of the references, with a bishop's name at the foot, said she had lost a husband under most distressing circumstances six months after marriage. But she had not worn mourning. And what with all the current flitter of talk about self-expression and married individuality, it passed for simple oddity; five years earlier it would have been rated mysteriously criminal.

She had fine, high manners; the most critical could not gainsay that, any more than her low, clear voice,

WARREN

Mrs. William Teague, who has been the guest for the past two weeks of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. Kallech, returned to her home in Canaan, Conn. on Friday.

Ralph Robinson has been confined to the house by illness the past week.

Ellis Watts returned Friday from Rockland, where he has spent the past week.

Almond Hall has resigned his position as bookkeeper for M. Shortell & Son, to accept a like position with a firm of granite cutters nearer his home in St. George. Mr. Hall will be missed by his fellow employees here by whom he was well liked.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Moore bought a radio set on their recent trip to Boston, and have become enthusiastic fans.

Lawrence Dolham, who was badly shaken up on Thursday morning when knocked down by a horse driven by Ralph Crockett of East Warren, was unable to work the remainder of the week.

EAST WALDOBORO

Mrs. Hanna and family spent Christmas at a family gathering with her mother, Mrs. Maria Sherman, Round Pond.

Mrs. Margaret Wincapaw is spending the winter with Mrs. Charles Young, Warren.

Wesley Walz called on his uncle, Joseph Walz, Sunday.

Miss Ursula Hanna, who has been visiting relatives here and in New Harbor has returned to New Jersey to resume teaching.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Goff of Whitinsville, Mass., were guests of her sister, Mrs. Harold Goff Monday.

Byron Whitaker spent his vacation with his mother, Mrs. Byron Whitaker in Boston.

Mrs. Isaac Mank went to Massachusetts Friday returning Tuesday, accompanied by Byron Whitaker.

Miss Annie Packard is visiting relatives in Braintree, Mass.

Mrs. Lucretia Kaler spent Christmas week with her daughter, Mrs. Addie Lawry, Rockland.

Irville Sivan of Auburn was a guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Mank.

Mrs. Charles Bowers and son Charles called on Moses S. Mank Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Levander Newbert and daughter Phyllis of North Waldoboro spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Josiah Jameson.

Howard Winslow spent a few days in Camden also visited other relatives last week.

Mrs. James Mank called on Mrs. Sarah Benner and Mrs. Emily Jameson Tuesday.

Miss Cora Jones and Charles Jones of Unity are visiting their sister, Mrs. Gardner Mank.

Lloyd Jameson of Rockland has been at his grandmother's, Mrs. Emily Jameson's.

SWAN'S ISLAND

Lida Gertrude Bridges of Swan's Island and Philip Arthur Kessel of Vinalhaven were married at the parsonage in Atlantic by Rev. Alfred T. Bradstreet on Dec. 27.

Miss Ross of Frenchboro, the new school teacher, is boarding at the home of Walter Joyce, and has reopened the Atlantic school.

During the last northerly gale the motorboat of Seth Joyce broke from its moorings and went on the rocks and reefed. Next day the Atlantic fishermen effected rescue, and the damage will not be great.

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Trask and son Leland have gone to Norwood, R. I., where they will spend the balance of the winter with Austin Joyce.

Mrs. Abbie Rich of Minutun has presented a fine new carpet to the Advent church. It has been laid by Will Sprague and adds much to the comfort and appearance of the church.

The boys are busy evenings catching frothfish in the brooks.

Everett Carter has been carrying the Atlantic mail since the roads became unfit for auto travel on account of the snow. We have been receiving the mail in Atlantic early and regularly all the fall and early winter, but now with the mail steamer on winter schedule and touching at Vinalhaven the mail will arrive later in the evening and not regularly.

Mrs. Elmina Sprague is residing at the home of her son Ernest in Atlantic.

Yes, It's a Kineo Pipeless Furnace

MADE AT BANGOR, MAINE
AT THE LOWEST PRICES EVER OFFERED

This is not a cheap furnace, it is the best and one of the heaviest built, with asbestos between two double walls, inside the outside wall. All walls made of heaviest galvanized iron. With double or single feed door.

Do not let anyone tell you that it is not the best one built, because our price is much lower than other high-grade makes. The difference is in the profit, not in the quality.

I have a cheaper furnace made by the Homer Furnace Company, size 22 inch, price $165.00, but the Kineo is the lowest ever offered. The 20 inch $175.00 or the 22 inch $185.00, all set up.

I am willing to put one of these in any home, if suitable for a one-pipe furnace, with a guarantee to satisfy or take it out after we have had some very cold weather to test it. You need not make any payment until you are satisfied.

I have also made a 20% reduction on Kineo Ranges and Heaters.

You can buy an 8-20 Star Kineo Range, with high shelf for $60.80, delivered anywhere in Maine.

reins to a black boy in wait for such harvests he all but ran about the shaded grounds in search of the Downe carriage, only to find it empty.

The driver, sprawled on the ground hard by, stirred sleepily to say: "White laddies done gone ter listen at de preachin'." The house was packed, but somehow Michael crushed himself inside, and for five minutes feasted his aching eyes on the face he worshipped.

He saw it in profile, hence did not mark the change in it at first. It was not paler than usual, but so tense it seemed gray. As his sunclouded sight cleared he saw that she sat as might a wild beast crouched for a deadly spring. Her eyes burned upon the narrow pulpit and the man within it. He was asetic-looking, tall, wasted, with cavernous hollows beneath eyes that gazed downward, and deep graven lines encircling a cruelly beautiful mouth.

In a thrilling voice, low but resonant, trained in every art speech has ever evolved he was beseeching, entreating all within sound of it to forsake the world and its allurements, give up earth for Heaven. His listeners, for the most part solid, stolid farmer folk, swayed and stirred like tall grain in a ruffling breeze. Amazement had begun the stir—June meeting was no time nor place for revival appeals. But as the voice played upon them as a master harper upon his instrument, they lost themselves in the flood-tide appeal. "Foot washing for humility, heart washing for cleansing of sin, soul washing for life everlasting," he ended suddenly, leaping down and almost running along the narrow aisle. Mrs. Kenyon, sitting beside it, arose wraith-like in his path, clutched him, and said, her words dropping like molten lead: "Tell us what washing can make a child-stealer clean?"

"The poor creature is quite mad—she must be," he said, trying to free himself. "I do not know her—has she any friends?"

"A hundred—I'm only the nearest," Michael cried. He had rushed to Josefa as he saw her rise. "They'll follow her—you come with me outside. We'll get at the truth—no matter who it hurts."

"Let me speak it—here in the house of God, in the face of His true followers," Mrs. Kenyon said steadily. "I married this man seven years back—a foolish young girl, bewitched by his eloquence. It was money—money he wanted—money I was due to inherit from my uncle. He died suddenly—in an accident—then it came out that he had been privately married to a pretty, poor girl, whom he had been ashamed to acknowledge."

"But she had given him a child. As a late atonement he had willed his fortune to the baby—with reversion to me if the little one died. It disappeared, nobody knew how. Its mother grieved herself insane for it—then my husband," her voice breaking over the word, "moved to get for me what he called 'my rights.' I defied him—I knew he had made away with the child, though I could not prove it. But I would not touch the money, not even when he threatened to kill me. But I told him I would accuse him openly unless he went out of my sight and knowledge and gave over his pulpit work. War came just then. He rushed into it—I lost all trace of him. Was it wrong in me to pray that he had died? Now I find him here!"—the bitterness of death in the word—"preaching faith and repentance to you clean-souled people. Say—what does he deserve?"

An inarticulate roar as of a stormy sea answered her. Before it broke into words the man fell in a crumpled heap at his wife's feet. Two gasps, and he was dead. She looked at him with burning eyes but sighed: "Thank God for his weak heart."

"Mine is strong enough to shelter you always," Michael whispered as he led her away.

THOMASTON

Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Jones, who have been spending two weeks in Whitinsville and Lynn, Mass., the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jones, and Mrs. G. H. Parker, have returned home.

Miss Anna Dillingham returned to Boston Monday, after having been the guest of Mrs. Ardelle Curing for the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Burton who were called here by the tragic death of Sidney Burton, returned to Sanford yesterday.

Schools opened in town Monday.

Miss Cora Fogarty of Cushing is visiting Miss Harriet Levensaler.

Capt. John Brown leaves the latter part of the week for Miami, Fla.

George Riulac and Mr. Warren of Chicago are in town. The latter being here to make arrangements for having a boat built at the Morse Boat Shop. They are guests at the Knox Hotel.

UNION

There will be a Parish Get-together held at the Congregational Church on Thursday evening of this week. Invitations are being sent out to all the members of the parish urging their attendance, and a large gathering is looked for.

The purpose of this meeting is good fellowship and also to talk over the work of the church and make further plans for the year. There will be a banquet at 6:30 which will be followed by the singing of songs and a social time generally, after which the Clerk will call the roll of church members to which each is asked to respond. The report of the various departments of work will be given and new business transacted for 1924. The pastor is very solicitous that every member of the Parish be present on this occasion so that it will be a grand success, and also see what the church is doing and what it desires to do for the good of the community.

PARK THEATRE

Today will be the last showing of Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood." "Robin Hood" is a picture wherein the age of chivalry and romance, adventure and courage, is visualized for eyes of today; wherein eight hundred years have been spanned by the art of the photoplay; wherein the manners and customs of the Middle Ages are set clearly and historically accurate before a Twentieth Century public. It beckons you with its deeply human story of Robin Hood and sweet Maid Marian, Sherwood Forest and Nottingham Town, Friar Tuck and Little John—of the days when knights in armor fought with lance and armored steeds, and when hearts were won with cudgel, staff and broadsword.

The attraction for Wednesday-Thursday will be Lenore Urie in David Belasco's "Tiger Rose." The story set in the far northwest, in the region where men and wild beasts rove at large, killing and being killed, impelled by instincts of hunger, love and fear, is one chock-full of the dramatic and soul-stirring. As a result, the picture is said to move and thrill with human interest. Rose Bocdon, nicknamed "Tiger Rose" for her untamed ways, is a regular wildcat, untamed and unrestrained. Leaving home after her father's death, she is saved from death on a raft and brought to the factor of a Hudson Bay post, who decides to adopt and bring her up as his own child. In the post she learns to participate in the loves and hates of the men she is thrown in contact with—adv.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Today is the last opportunity to see "Breaking Into Society" at the Empire in an all star cast which include Bull Montana.

Comedy! It's a tame word for this picture! You'll get a hundred dollars' worth of entertainment for every nickel of admission price you pay!

The feature picture for Wednesday and Thursday will be "South of the Northern Lights," with Neal Hart. It is a story of great adventure in thinly inhabited places along the American and Canadian borders. Many scenes take place on unbroken trails of the far north, on land and water, picturesque to an extreme, sweet smelling pines, whispering leaves and crooning streams, where all nature abounds in its glory, to fill the eye and enthrall the hearts of all lovers of the big outdoors with fast moving action that quicken the heartbeats. There will be the usual added attractions—adv.

WHAT TIME IS IT?

You Ask the Question Often
But Do You Know How Many Ways of Telling.

A 24-hour day, beginning at midnight, is so universally accepted by landsmen that the recent announcement that the system would be extended to ships, which now begin their day at noon, was surprising.

"However, land time and ship time are only two of a number of ways which men have marked the fleeting moments, and various other ways survive even now," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Alfred the Great had wax candles, 12 inches high, marked in notches to tell off the four hours they burned. He later covered them with thin white horn, lantern-fashion, to protect them from drafts, but he was far behind his times in comparison with other portions of the world, and his timepiece was crude in the extreme compared with other inventions before 900 A. D.

Ancient Sun Dials

"Primitive peoples, before the dawn of history, fixed a pole or stick in the ground and drew a line about it representing the course of the shadow it cast from sunrise to sunset. We may suppose that when Mr. Cave-man started out in the morning on a foraging expedition, he led Mrs. Cave-man out and notched the shadow-line to show her when she could expect him home. Some of his fellow-mortals in other parts of the world in the same stage of development made a kind of hemp or grass rope which they dampened and knotted in regular spaces. When this was lighted, the slowly and regularly creeping spark told off the flight of time. It is said that these primitive time-markers are used in parts of Chosen (Korea) today.

"Though some students believe that the early Japanese had no method of reckoning time, others claim that primitive Japanese and Chinese used almost the same thing as the rope, though their device more nearly resembled a wick which had been so treated that it smoldered out the hours. One of these ancient wicks is now in a museum in Paris.

"Even before 3800 B. C. the sparkling stars over Eastern deserts had been astronomers of men who had begun to reckon time by the cycles of the planets. No one knows when they first divided the time from sun to sun into 24 parts nor when the hours were first divided into minutes, but Ptolemy adopted the method in the second century and gave it to his world.

A Time "Sinker"

"Some of the Malays even today use a crude apparatus for measuring time which has probably been in vogue in the Far East for almost 5,000 years. It is called the water-clock and is simply a small dish or round bowl with a small hole in the bottom. When this is placed in a tub of water it gradually becomes full of water, which it gradually empties in the same period of time. On the Malay junk it is the customary thing to see a coconut shell floating in a bowl of water to tell off the time away from the home port.

"The ancient Egyptians knew the water-clock too, and the British Museum possesses one inscribed with the name of Alexander the Great.

"The Greeks claimed that the sundial was invented by a pupil of Thales of Miletus, but the great sun-dial of Abaz was mentioned in the Bible when God promised the stock Hebrews to deliver his Assyria out of the hands of the king of Assyria. Historians have

RABBITS QUITE AS DELICIOUS AS CHICKENS WHEN PROPERLY COOKED

The Flavor of Young Rabbits Resembles White Meat of Chicken.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Properly cooked rabbits are as delicious as chicken, the United States Department of Agriculture points out, and are more economical, even when they must be purchased from a butcher. The flavor of young hutch rabbits is somewhat resembles the white meat of chicken, and the less tender, but more gamey, wild rabbits, well prepared, are similar in taste to the darker portions of poultry that have been fricasseed or cooked in a casserole.

Appetizing Ways of Cooking.

Before cooking the rabbit should be washed carefully in cold water and patted dry with a clean towel. It may then be stuffed and trussed if it is to be cooked whole, or cut into eight or ten pieces. Young tender rabbits may be simply dredged with flour, salt and pepper and fried in four tablespoonsful of fat, like fried chicken. Sausage fat gives a particularly good flavor to fried rabbit. The flavor of bacon also combines well with rabbit. A cream or brown gravy should be made, using the fat in which the rabbit was fried.

Another excellent way to cook a tender rabbit is to bake it in cream or white sauce. Split the rabbit into two halves along the backbone, dredge with flour, lay six slices of bacon across it, and pour three cupsful of white sauce or three cupsful of cream over it. Bake for 1½ hours, basting frequently. The rabbit liver, boiled till tender and chopped, may be added to the gravy. Smothered rabbit is stuffed and braised slowly with very little water in a covered pan.

Many dishes may be prepared after stewing rabbit till tender. The meat may be cut from the bones in large pieces and served as rabbit pie, or a gravy made from the broth, with either a pastry or biscuit crust. Any broth not used makes excellent soup. Rabbit salad may be mixed with celery in the same proportions as chicken salad—two parts of diced cooked meat to one part of chopped celery and one-half part of salad dressing. The boiled rabbit may be served as a stew by adding potatoes, carrots and onions when the meat is partly cooked. The liquid in which the stew is cooked should be thickened. A spiced rabbit stew appeals to many persons. The seasonings consist of six slices of bacon, chopped, a minced onion of medium size, two tablespoonsful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and one tablespoonful of whole cloves in a bag, all covered with boiling water and stewed slowly together till the rabbit is tender. A brown sauce is made separately and poured over the rabbit, which is then simmered two hours.

First Fried, Then Simmered.

The flavor of many slowly cooked rabbit dishes is improved by first browning the pieces of rabbit in a little bacon or other fat and then cooking them slowly either in water or in a gravy made from the same fat. Fricasseed rabbit is first browned and then boiled. It is often served with steamed dumplings, made like biscuit dough with the addition of an egg and steamed in the gravy of the fricassee. Casserole rabbit is cut up and browned in bacon fat, then arranged in a casserole with strips of fried bacon, sliced onions and potatoes, dredged lightly with flour and covered with water. The casserole should be covered tightly and slowly baked for two hours.

A tomato sauce may be used instead of water in the casserole, the tomato being omitted, or the browned rabbit may be simmered in a tomato and onion sauce over a low flame till the rabbit is tender. The tomato sauce cooks down and gives a very good flavor to the rabbit. A savory stew may be made after frying the rabbit by boiling one medium-sized onion and two bay leaves with the meat until it is nearly tender. To the fat that was used to brown the rabbit add two tablespoonsful of flour, mix thoroughly and add one cupful of vinegar. Pour this sauce over the meat and simmer until it is very tender. Serve with fresh or canned string beans and a dessert of baked apples.

Other Uses for Rabbit.

Any cold cooked rabbit may be ground up and used as a basis for hash, croquettes, shepherd's pie, or similar dishes. Meat loaf or meat balls may be made of raw chopped rabbit meat in the same way as beef or veal. Sausage cakes may be made from twice-ground meat with any preferred seasoning. If pork flavor is desired one part fat pork may be mixed with two parts ground rabbit meat. Very good sausage flavor will result from mixing the following proportions: two pounds twice-ground rabbit meat, one minced onion (which may be omitted) one tablespoonful salt, one teaspoonful pepper, one and one-half teaspoonful powdered sage, one bay leaf, pinch each of thyme and allspice, four to six tablespoonsful finely crumbed dry bread or cracked crumbs, one beaten egg and one-half cup of rich sweet milk.

fixed this date as being about 713 B. C. "From Greece the sun-dial made its way to Rome, the first one being set up in the temple of Quirinus. Roman citizens evidently suffered from that universal failing of orators, for in 61 B. C. Pompey the Great set up in the Forum a valuable water-clock which he publicly announced was to limit the long-windedness of speakers.

Sand-Glass Still Used

"No one knows how old the sand-glass is. It may have been suggested by the water-clock and probably originated in one of the desert countries—Egypt or Babylonia—where water was at a premium. We cannot tell exactly what substances they were made, but they were shown on Greek sculpture before the Christian era. The sand-glass or water-glass has two uses all its own at the present time—for boiling eggs, and in the English House of Commons to time the bells that ring to notify members that a division is at hand.

"Water-clocks and sun-dials reached high perfection and elaborateness during the ninth century, the masterpieces exchanged by Haroun al Rashid and Charlemagne being two of the most famous of history. The time clocks of various kinds and classes made their appearance until Peter Lightfoot in 1335 made the earliest real clock worthy of our modern definition. This old hand-maiden of Father Time still is going in the Science Museum at South Kensington. "The wrist watch is usually considered a modern development of the watch and clock industry, but Queen Elizabeth were the first one about the same time she introduced silk stockings."

TO TEMPT THE APPETITE

An entree is rather an inclusive term for it covers fritters, souffles, rissoles, patties, bouclies, vol au vents, croquettes and timbales and these are not all.

Chicken Rissoles.—Roll puff paste one-eighth of an inch in thickness and cut into rounds. Place one teaspoonful of finely-minced meat seasoned and moistened with white sauce on each round. Brush with cold water and fold over like a turnover, press the edges together. Dip in egg diluted with water and fry in deep fat.

For the filling take one-half cupful of finely-chopped cooked chicken, with one-fourth of a cupful of minced ham, moisten with white sauce, season with salt and cayenne. Pastry shells filled with this mixture are called bouclies.

Cheese Souffle With Pastry.—Beat two eggs, add two-thirds of a cupful of thick cream, one-half cupful of Swiss cheese cut into bits, one-half cupful of grated American cheese, cayenne, salt and a few gratings of nutmeg. Line the sides of ramekin dishes with strips of puff paste. Fill the dishes two-thirds full and bake in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven.

Lobster Cream.—Remove the lobster meat from the shell and chop finely; a two-pound lobster will be sufficient. Cook together one-half cupful each of soft bread crumbs and milk for ten minutes. Add one-fourth of a cupful of cream, two teaspoonfuls of anchovy essence, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a little cayenne. Add the whites of three eggs beaten stiff. Turn into buttered molds and bake in a dish of hot water.

Supreme of Chicken.—Chop the breast and second joints of uncooked chicken very fine. Beat four eggs, one at a time, beating well between. Add one and one-half cupfuls of thick cream and season with salt and pepper. Turn into buttered molds and bake in a pan of hot water. Place buttered paper over the molds while baking.

ROCKPORT

IN MEMORIAM

Of Dr. Stephen Y. Weidman, Died in Rockport Dec. 30, 1923, Aged 70 Years.

What! didst thou dare to touch that pleasant face

So gladly welcomed to the house of pain;

To fold that generous heart in thy embrace,

No cold, O Death, will ever beat again!

Was there no pity in thy breast, O Death,

When looking in those deep, expressive eyes

You saw the light go out, as if thy breath

Had blotted two fair stars from out the skies?

Hadst thou no thought of suffering ones around

For whom he thought and labored night and day?

Gave his large skill to close the gaping wound,

Or wrest from fell disease his power to slay?

What hand more nobly serves the world than his

Who holds the healer's cup to fevered lips,

Who puts the rainbow on the cloud of tears

And brings the sun of health from his eclipse?

Great deeds are done which only angels see,

Sweet comforts give which no praise is ripe;

And in each service, rendered silently,

God sees perchance the hero true of life.

He went when duty called, no aid denied,

Not asked the question, "Ere they rich or poor?"

Where'er the voice of human anguish cried

His footsteps tended toward the shadowed door.

Went there the helper, and he gave the wine

Of his own strength and large full life to all;

Prove he poured it out, until the "Vine"

Touched by thy touch, O Death, itself did fall.

How many friends will miss the hidden face!

How many grateful hearts this sorrow feel!

Thy ruthless art, O Death, in many a place

Has left a weeping wound for Time to heal.

Gone! Yes, he's gone from all our outward sight,

Fled from the touch of hand and eye and ear.

But, Death, thou canst not take away the light

Of what he was to us while present here.
